About Sarry's

Sarry's is revolutionizing the Canadian dessert market by introducing authentic Gulab Jamun / Rose Water berries to coffee shops, convenience stores, specialty retailers and superstores across Lower Mainland British Columbia. We're transforming a beloved delicacy into a mainstream premium dessert experience that resonates with Canadian taste preferences while honoring its rich cultural heritage.

As a proudly Canadian company, Sarry's Wholesale Corporation is more than just a business, we are cultural ambassadors bridging the gap between global heritage and local craftsmanship. By manufacturing here in Canada, we bring authentic, diverse flavors to you without compromising on quality.

Whether you are a retailer seeking premium, locally-made ethnic products or an investor tapping into a thriving market, we invite you to join our delicious revolution.

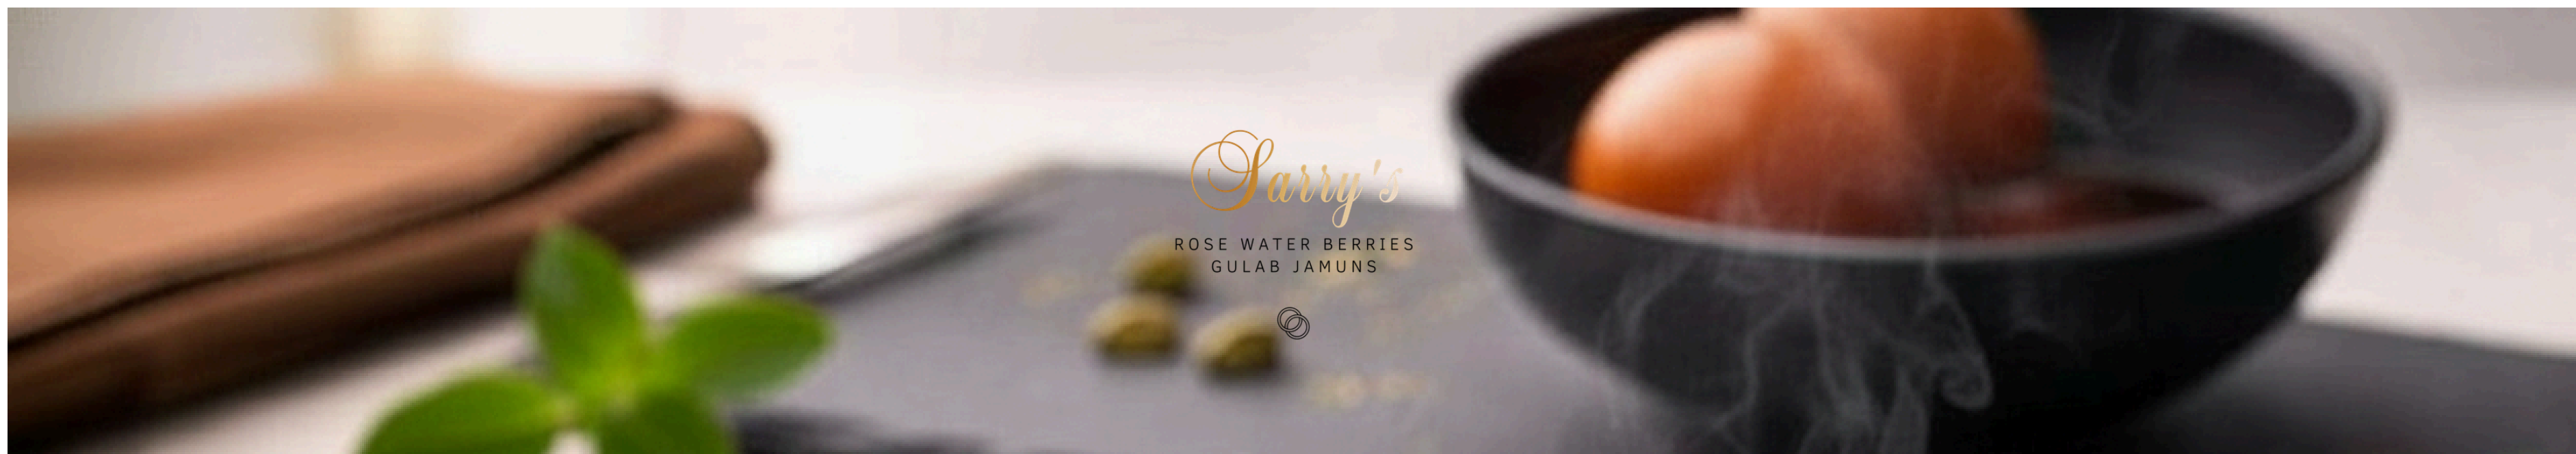

Product Details

Gulab" is Persian for Rosewater. "Jamun" is an Indian fruit (the Black Plum) that the dessert perfectly resembles in size and shape.

Every batch is made fresh right here in Metro Vancouver, combining centuries-old culinary techniques with the finest local ingredients. By crafting our confections locally, we ensure that every delicate, golden sphere reaches you at the peak of freshness. Experience authentic, aromatic perfection with no deep-freezing or long-haul importing.

The story of the Rose Water Berry is a journey that spans centuries and continents. Its roots trace back to medieval Persia and the bustling trade routes of Central Asia, where it originated as an artisanal dough delicacy.

When this concept reached the royal kitchens of the Mughal Empire in the 16th century, master chefs transformed it, creating an impossibly rich, velvety texture fit for emperors. This evolution elevated the treat into a legendary dessert prized for its delicate balance of floral notes and refined indulgence.
